INTRODUCTION

I HAVE been requested by Captain H. G. Kennedy, R. O., the able editor of this work to write an introduction, so perhaps a word as to how this book came to be written may not be out of place. The publishers, Messrs. Pearce and Kennedy, approached myself and the officers of the 101st Regiment and offered to compile this volume for us, and I must confess that at first I strenuously objected, but when I found that the majority of my Officers were in favor of it, I finally consented. I have thought that perhaps our Regiment has not had a long enough career to be of general interest or to make it's history of value. I have fully changed my mind and am now very pleased at the shape that the book has taken. With the exception of two or three regrettable instances which at present cannot be overcome, I am well satisfied. Several of our officers do not appear in this work and I regret that it is largely their own fault they are not included but hope that later on we may re-issue the work and that we may be able to publish all their photographs and biographical sketches.

Both the Regiment and myself owe a deep debt of gratitude to the gentlemen who, by their liberal patronage and many kind actions have made the production of this book possible and we hope some day it may lay in our power to show in some practical manner our sincere appreciation.

The intention of the promoters and all who have been interested in the production of this work, has not been the glorification of individuals or praise for the regiment, but rather that a record may be established of Military pioneering in this Western Province. Nor has it been advanced with a view to making money as neither time, trouble nor expense has been spared in its production.

To those who are not acquainted with our military system, I would like to point out we are not living off the Government or making money from the wearing of our uniforms. On the contrary, it costs the officer or private soldier not only his full allowance for his summer's drill and the drain on his own time and liberty but also additional money he is asked to expend in the support of regimental institutions. So that when you see an officer or man in the uniform of the Canadian Militia after this, remember that he is not wearing it to the glorification of his own person or the benefit of his pocket, but that he is doing it in the interests of his King, and through that innate love of supporting the institutions of his country which is born in the breasts of all citizens of the British Empire.

Our Regiment has a high standard to live up to, being now affiliated with the Royal Munster Fusiliers, who were the original "101st" of the line with a record of two hundred years of fighting service under the British flag and being well known for their general efficiency setting a mark which it would be impossible for us to attain but which we hope to keep well in sight.

Time has been very lenient to us, as in the five years since our organization we have lost but two of our number by death, Lieutenant General John Winburn Laurie, our first Honorary Colonel, and Colonel in Chief of the Royal Munster Fusiliers, who died this summer, and our beloved comrade, Lieutenant James Morris, who was accidentally shot while hunting and whose death left a lamentable gap in our ranks.

In closing I would like to draw your attention to the fact that this book is dedicated to the Officers and Men of the Canadian Militia, who have given so freely of their time and money to help build up the Empire in these Overseas Dominions and to keep in the public eye standard British institutions, also our boys who volunteered for service in Africa, not only those who took part in the glories, but also those who volunteered but who had to endure the disappointment of remaining at home.

I have the honor to be, the Public's obedient servant.

W. F. W. CARSTAIRS.

HISTORY

THESE was no doubt about it that in the spring of 1908 Edmonton showed signs of the growth which has since so rapidly developed. This was borne in on the minds of four of her citizens, to wit: Lt. Col. E. B. Edwards, Major (now Lt. Col.) W. F. W. Carstairs, Capt. (now Major) F. A. Osborne, and Capt. (now Major) W. S. Weeks, who foregathered and considered the advisability of raising a Western Infantry Regiment. Their councils completed, overtures were made to the proper authorities with the result that on October 5, 1908, one of those very laconic general orders was issued by the Militia Council of Canada which resulted in the birth of the "101st Regiment of Infantry with headquarters at Edmonton, Alberta."

This was not the first unit of Canadian Militia in its present form to make its headquarters in the Alberta capital. A cavalry regiment, now known as the 19th Alberta Dragoons, was even then in a flourishing condition, while in the stirring times of '85 many were the men of the then sparsely populated district of Edmonton who took up arms to defend their homes and the ones they loved from the terrible dangers which then threatened.

Fortunately since that time no need has arisen for men to go out and fight in this wonderful country of ours, but at the time of the South African war there were many men who went from this district in one or other of the Canadian regiments which participated in that campaign, thereby serving their country and their sovereign.

October 5, 1908, therefore, saw the birth of the 101st Regiment, shortly afterwards known as the 101st Edmonton Fusiliers and now affiliated with the 101st Royal Munster Fusiliers, which regiment has one of the longest fighting records of any in the Imperial Army.

Lt. Col. Elihu Burritt Edwards, formerly brigadier of the 7th Infantry Brigade, with headquarters at Peterborough, in accordance with the request of those who had worked with him, accepted the first command. With him was Major W. F. W. Carstairs, Reserve of Officers, second in command. The other officers on organization were: Captains, F. A. Osborne, W. S. Weeks, R. de L. Harwood, P. Anderson, F. T. Fisher, W. H. Ketchum, J. V. E. Carpenter, and O. F. Strong. As lieutenants: G. B. McLeod, H. F. Whittaker, H. B. Spratt, A. G. C. de L. Harwood, V. C. Mulvey, C. K. Flint, C. P. A. Keffer, K. B. McKenzie, A. E. Hutton, A. H. Meneely, W. E. Lines, F. L. Bradburn, R. H. Stewart, H. W. Moffat, J. W. Morris, E. L. Crumb, R. J. Macdonald. The quartermaster was G. A. Reid, Esq., with the honorary rank of captain. The paymaster was H. B. Round, Esq., with similar rank, while the chaplain was and is still the Rev. Dr. D. G. McQueen, also an honorary captain. Attached to the Regiment for medical duties was Provisional Lieutenant J. D. Maclean, who was shortly succeeded by Lieutenant J. L. Biggar.

Once the organization was set in order and the officers and staff appointed it was not long before things began to show signs of life in the neighborhood of the McKay Avenue and Separate school houses, which were secured as temporary armouries. In the winter months which followed there was held the first provisional school for the qualification of officers and non-commissioned officers. This was held under the command of Captain E. F. Mackie, D.S.O. of Strathcona Horse, and commenced January, 1909.

Early in February quite a few men had joined and many of them were qualifying for promotion, with the result that by the middle of that month 26 had qualified and held non-commissioned rank. These formed the nucleus around which the regiment was to be built, so that by the opening of the training season of 1909, on April 6, some 150 men had been enrolled and attached to one or other of the eight companies into which the regiment was divided. It was at this time also that the name Edmonton Fusiliers was first authorized, and the Regiment obtained the use of the present temporary armoury.

HON. COL. THOMAS CAMERON LAZIER

On April 21 the first "duties" were detailed. Capt. F. A. Osborne was Orderly Officer, Col. Sgt. Howland (now lieutenant) was Orderly Sergeant, while Bugler E. Baty shared the duties of the week.

Then came the work of instructing all in the various duties pertaining to their respective ranks. Stretcher bearer sections, signalling sections and the like had to be formed and all the time the regiment was growing. Changes too took place among the officers and it was soon found that though men might be enlisted the habit of life in the west was as yet too unsettled for a man to remain very long in town. The percentage who have stayed, however, and who are still with the regiment is very good and really surprisingly large and so those in command were well pleased with the results at the end of the first year of their regiment's existence.

On the 24th June, 1909, the Regiment underwent its first inspection at the hands of Brigadier General Otter, C.B., C.V.O., when they acquitted themselves entirely to the satisfaction of the General, the inspection being held in the armoury. A few days previous to this the Regiment had attended its first church parade, when it marched out to the camp of the 19th Mounted Rifles on the Groat Estate, where a Divine service was held, another church parade followed on July 6, when the regiment marched to the First Presbyterian Church. This was the last function before the drill season was brought to a close after the first annual inspection by the District Officer Commanding, Lt. Col. Cruikshanks, which took place in the last week of July.

During the following few months only bare routine work was done, until His Excellency Earl Grey, Governor General of Canada, visited the Provincial Capital to lay the corner stone of the new Legislative buildings. The Regiment on this occasion provided a Guard of Honor to meet His Excellency on the arrival of the Vice-Regal train at Strathecona, and again on the following day, Friday, 1st October, 1909, at the place which had been selected as the site of the buildings, the corner stone of which was to be laid. As a result of the way in which the men turned out, came a letter, very shortly afterwards, from His Excellency complimenting Col. Edwards on the appearance of his men and thanking him for the Guard of Honor which had so well performed its duties.

The season of 1910 opened as usual in the month of April after a very slight touch had been maintained through the winter months. Many men had left town and others had dropped out for one reason or another so that it was found necessary to push forward with the recruiting as speedily as possible.

The sadder side of military garrison duty was touched even before the season started by the death of Lieut. James W. Morris, as the result of a shooting accident. This officer had always been a great favorite with those who had the honor of his friendship and his loss to the regiment was keenly felt by all who composed it. On the 17th of March his body was laid to rest with full military honors, his fellow officers acting as pall bearers, while other members of the Regiment formed the escort and firing party.

Another loss the Regiment suffered was that of Sergeant Major William Baty, whose zeal and willingness to help others had made him invaluable in the days of the Regiment's infancy. This N.C.O. was discharged from the corps at his own request to take up other duties in another branch of the militia service of the Dominion.

Then came the bereavement of the year which was felt not only by the Regiment but by all the Empire and in a lesser degree by the whole world, in the death of our beloved Sovereign King Edward VII. In conjunction with all the rest of the Empire the funeral services were held in Edmonton, the 101st Regiment bearing out its part in the sorrowful memorials.

After this the work of the season went on in its regular manner. On June 8 the Regiment took part in attack and defense practise in which the local Mounted Corps also took their share. In July the annual inspection by the District Officer Commanding Military District 13 took place.

The drill season being closed it was thought that a little outing which would combine instruction and amusement would be welcome and after some cogitation on the part of the authorities it was decided that the outing would take place at Cooking Lake. Only a day or two could be spared as at that time no regular arrangements had been made for annual training camps in this part of the country, but these few days were to be full of work, which from its very departure from the regular thing would be calculated to afford much real interest and amusement. All the expenses of this and the succeeding year's camp at Tofield were borne by the officers of the corps, no outside help being asked or accepted. Accordingly, on July 16 the Regiment paraded at the Armouries and went by train to the place selected, which has since become known as Military Point. There camp was pitched and under service conditions the members of the 101st enjoyed themselves. Outposts, scouting and sham battles took up all the spare time on week days, while on Sunday a church parade took place, which many of Edmonton's citizens attended.

Shortly after there occurred a thing which stands very much to the credit of the Regiment's marching ability. It was the occasion of the visit of Lord Stratheona, and arrangements had been made for the transport of the Regiment, who were to provide a Guard of Honor, by means of street cars. Some one blundered, as on a more fatal occasion in the history of the British Army, and the result was that the boys had to "hoof" their way to meet the High Commissioner. The march from the armoury to the Stratheona station, a good three miles, was covered in less than 30 minutes, and the Guard was on parade in time for the arrival of the train.

On the occasion of the opening of the Edmonton Exhibition by the Lieutenant-Governor, the Regiment again did duty with a Guard of Honor and on Thanksgiving Day a sham battle took place in the North Edmonton country, in which both mounted men and infantry took their part. Later in the fall a provisional school was held, together with a garrison school of signalling which many members of both local corps attended.

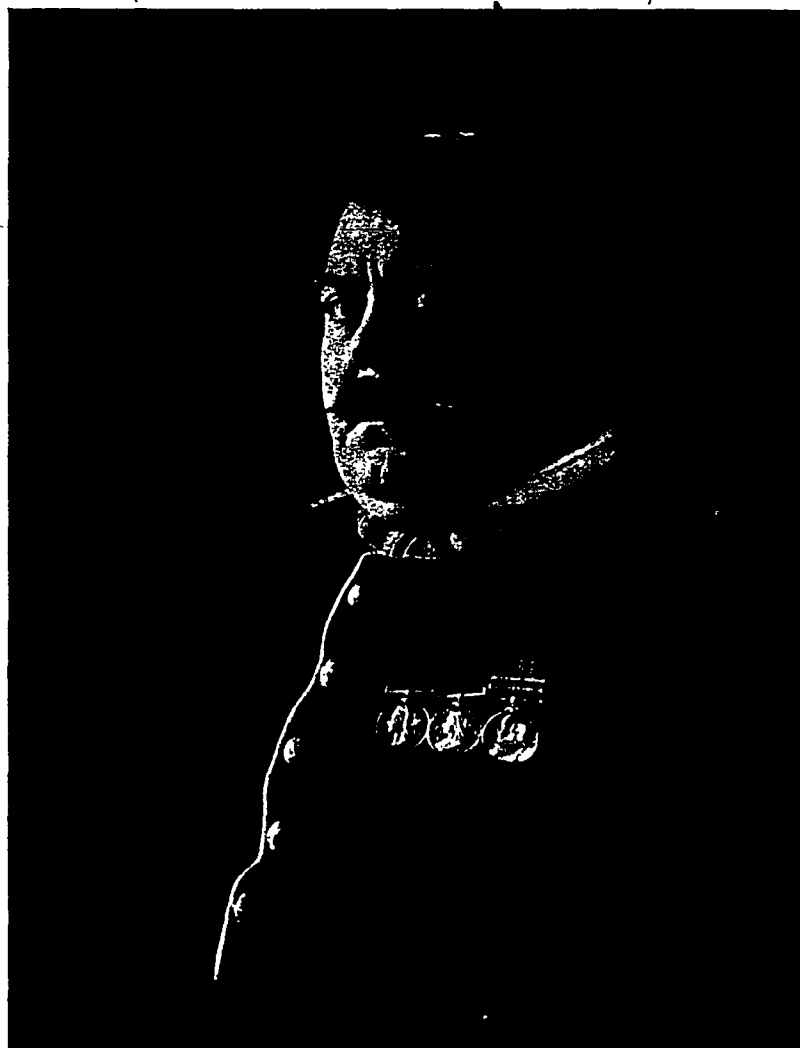

The first thing of interest in the regimental new year was the selection of three men for the Canadian contingent to the Coronation of His Majesty, King George V. The men selected were: Sergt. A. H. Elliot, now Regimental Sergeant Major; Sergeant Smalien, and Corporal P. H. Kenwood. The latter was promoted sergeant before the detachment left for the East, where they were attached to the main body of the contingent and given a preliminary training previous to leaving for England on board the Empress of Ireland on June 2nd.

In May the Regiment received a new non-commissioned officer in the person of Quartermaster Sergeant Instructor J. H. C. Bingham of the Royal Canadian Regiment of Infantry. This was an innovation on the part of the Militia Department and one which did more to help forward the corps in which we are interested than any other change that could have been made. This N.C.O. was attached to the Regiment for the purpose of instructing those who held positions as officers or non-commissioned officers and to attend to such matters as might be calculated to add to the efficiency of any unit in the field of war.

Victoria Day was celebrated by a trip to Fort Saskatchewan, whither the Regimental Band had been asked to go. Taking advantage of this the officer commanding thought it would be a good thing for the Regiment, and so arrangements were made and when at the Fort a march past was arranged, the Inspecting Officer being Lt. Col. S. Maynard Rogers of the 13rd Ottawa Rifles. This march past was a revelation to those who had flouted the idea of the success of an infantry regiment in the West. The men were smart in their appearance and marched over the rough ground with a steadiness worthy of those much better trained. Col. Rogers expressed his delight at the manner in which the men had acquitted themselves and the whole party came back that night filled with pleasure at the day's outing.

Early in June a child was lost on the Hudson's Bay Reserve. Word was brought to the city that he had been missing for more than twenty-four hours and calling out the Regiment, Col. Edwards scoured the whole of the area on the east by extending the Regiment and the volunteers as far as they would go. A march north disclosed no sign of the poor little lad, but when the men had moved west and were preparing for a sweep south over new ground he was soon found. Glad was no word to describe the feelings of the boy's father and the men who had given up their own time to this work of kindness shared his happiness. This was the second occasion on which the regiment did similar work, a boy having been lost in a similar way the previous fall.

The next celebration of this year was that of the Coronation of His Majesty King George V. This was a red letter day not only for the whole Empire, but also for the 101st, for after the regular celebration parade and "feu-de-joie" were over the Regiment received from the hands of its Fairy Godmothers, in the persons of the Westward Ho Chapter of the Daughters of the Empire a beautiful set of regimental colors. The colors were placed in the custody of Col. Carstairs and Capt. Harwood, next senior officers present and were consecrated by the Venerable Archdeacon Gray, Chaplain and Honorary Captain of the 19th Alberta Dragoons, then passed to the Grand Regent of the Grand Chapter of Alberta Daughters of the Empire from whom they were received by the two senior Lieutenants of the Regiment, Mulvey and Kiefer. After this beautiful ceremony the regiment trooped the colors, stacked arms and mixed with the gay throng enjoying the exhibition.

Another outing was arranged at the close of the season and on June 29 in spite of pouring rain the Regiment went to camp at Beaver Lake, Tofield, for three days. The rain was almost incessant but this did not damp the ardor of the men whose laughter and cheerfulness finally convinced the clerk of the weather that they could not be disappointed and he relented, sending on the last day several hours of magnificent sunshine in which the men fought a glorious sham battle against the volunteer defenders of the town of Tofield.

The off season had arrived once more. Early in the slack months those non-commissioned officers who had been to the coronation returned and at a smoking concert given in their honor delighted all their hearers with an account of their doings and sayings. The rest of the winter was taken up with schools of instruction and the usual round of smokers and dances which do so much to keep the men together.

At the close of the year the Regiment lost by a revolution of the wheel of seniority the services of its first Commanding Officer. Lt. Col. Edwards had seen the Regiment started, had seen it commence to flourish, and at the close of its third year of existence he placed the care of its well being in the hands of his senior Major.

W. F. W. Carstairs, who had also been one of those who joined it in the beginning of things and helped to make it a success. Lt. Col. Carstairs issued his first regimental orders on December 27, 1911.

Long before the regular commencement of the drill season of 1912 signs of life were to be noticed, several of the more energetic company officers calling their men together and getting them into shape for the coming season which was to be a record breaker. The season proper opened on the 2nd April, by which time Sgt. Major Bingham already had a good number of the season's recruits in shape for parading. The work was taken up by all with spirit and a big improvement in the appearance of the members of the Regiment was noticeable.

On May 17 a farewell smoking concert was given in honor of the departure of Sgt. W. Regan who was going as one of the Canadian Bisley team of the year to England.

A garrison parade was held on the evening of June 3 to celebrate the King's birthday. The troops were inspected by His Honor Lieutenant Governor Bulyea, the inspection being followed by the firing of a "feu de joie" and a march past. On this occasion the crowds of people who turned out to witness the parade showed their approval in a more hearty manner than ever before and it was the opinion of men who might be supposed to know that the Edmonton troops looked smarter and performed their manoeuvres more efficiently than on any previous occasion. The consequence of the rising popularity of the Regiment was shown by the increase in the recruiting which was heavier than in any previous year.

As if to cap the successes of the year, orders were issued for a camp of instruction to be held at Calgary in the last week of June. All arrangements were made and the orders for entraining on the evening of June 23 were issued and in all some three hundred and fifty men paraded to take advantage of the camp. The night was hot and stormy with the result that little rest was obtained on the road down to Calgary, and on arrival there some delay was experienced in getting the regiment any breakfast. The sun beat down unmercifully and camp was five miles away. Still all these odds notwithstanding the regiment marched that five miles at the quick and with the colors flying went into camp with a step like trained soldiers of long experience. Those units already in camp gave a welcome of hearty cheers which spoke volumes for the impression which the smart appearance of the men created.

Throughout the week the Regiment gave evidence of the quality of the men and of the work expected of them. From medical and military authorities alike praise as to stamina and physique was won.

During this camp a sham battle was fought on the afternoon of Wednesday, June 26. The Regiment was in the defending force with the 103rd Calgary Rifles. In the course of events these two regiments had to march nearly 12 miles in the full sun over dusty ground. Barely a shot was fired before the umpires gave decision that the honors lay with the defenders and the men completed the march home to the accompaniment of singing and laughter. In all two men fell out from the effects of heat and yet the men were not trained soldiers accustomed to marching under such arduous conditions. Last day twenty miles.

Friday, June 28, was the day which put the crown on all the successes the Regiment had taken proud possession of. Before breakfast company drill was gone through with and immediately afterwards the Regiment turned out with the rest of brigade of Cavalry, Infantry and Artillery to march past Major General Sir Colin Mackenzie, the Inspector General of the Canadian forces. This officer was supported at the saluting base by Lieut. Governor Bulyea and several others who were accompanied by ladies. The first march past was gone through successfully, and while the cavalry continued on a large sweep previous to coming round again at the trot the two infantry regiments returning marched past in equal columns, the Edmonton 101st and the Calgary 103rd marched back thereby completing their share of the pageant. Suddenly those in command became aware that a large enough sweep had not been made by the cavalry and that unless the infantry were rapidly moved out of the way a catastrophe would take place. It was an emergency move to clear the road and the order was given by Col. Carstairs to change direction left. It was possibly the weakest point in the Regiment's manoeuvres, as it is with even regulars. Judge of everybody's delight when the Edmonton Regiment wheeled as if held in place by a ruled line. They drew forth commendation from everyone who saw it and most important of all from the inspecting officer, Major General Sir Colin Mackenzie, in addition to personally expressing his appreciation to Col. Carstairs and the Regiment, issued a Brigade Order that defined the 101st Regiment, Edmonton Fusiliers, as the finest body of men, the largest regiment under camp for the season and the best drilled of any of the regiments it had been General Mackenzie's pleasure to review in all the camps of Eastern and Central Canada.

Barely had the Regiment got back to camp when it was ordered out again. This time it was a sham battle. Quick was the word and sharp the action for in three hours they were back in camp, having in that time marched nearly twenty miles and again completely routed the enemy, who had thought to take our camp. Dinner was then served and the men changed into their regimentals once more after a happy five days in the kahki of the camp life. Arrangements had been made with the Calgary car service to carry the Regiment to the rifle range for target practice, but like a car service nearer their home the Calgary cars proved they were not infallible. Result: after a march past, a sham battle including twenty miles over rough ground in sultry weather, the Regiment had to march through the city of Calgary for a distance of seven miles to the ranges and they did it with colors flying and band playing and the men smiling. Night came and the men were ready for bed, but no, Col. Carstairs packed off one or two officers and men whose health would not permit of a night out, but he with the major portion of the Regiment camped out under the skies, which as if to add to the reality of the "active service" touch, wept. It rained a fine Calgary sort of Scotch mist for the whole night.

The next day was spent in visiting the Calgary exhibition and attending a vaudeville performance, the latter being an expression of appreciation of the Regiment's work from Major Weeks.

MAJOR FRANK A. OSBORNE

This closed the regular season, but in order that the strings might not be entirely lost, drills were carried on for some time after the return from camp.

On the occasion of the Edmonton Exhibition, Col. Carstairs gave permission for the men to take part in a Military Tattoo. The Regiment and band took part every evening and it is no exaggeration to say that the effect of this performance was not only creditable to the Regiment but increased the gate receipts of the Exhibition considerably.

Shortly after this a concert was given in honor of the Westward Ho Chapter of the Daughters of the Empire, the members of which have always shown more than a passing interest in the welfare of the Regiment. To it they have stood as Fairy Godmothers, for to them the Regiment owes many things great and small which have added to the interest of militia life. On the occasion of this concert a silver challenge shield was presented to "B" company as having been the smartest and largest company at an inspection held at To-field during the 1911 camp at that place. This shield had been presented to the Regiment for competition by this Chapter of the Daughters of the Empire, and was seconded by a bronze shield presented by Col. Carstairs, which was won by "H" company for being the neatest in the matter of camp arrangements on the same occasion. These shields are being competed for annually, the company winning them three times in succession owning them.

During the first week of September, His Royal Highness Field Marshall the Duke of Connaught, Governor General of Canada, accompanied by H.R.H. the Duchess and the Princess Patricia, visited Edmonton for the purpose of opening the new Legislative buildings. On this occasion the 101st Regiment provided a guard of honor and during the other affairs which Their Royal Highnesses attended during their stay, members of the Regiment performed many duties in many different places.

Some time in the winter of 1911 the affiliation of the 101st Regiment, Edmonton Fusiliers, with the 1st Royal Munster Fusiliers, formerly the "101st of the Line," was accomplished. Shortly after this Lieut. General John Winburn Laurie, Honorary Colonel of the Munster Regiment was pleased to confer upon the local corps the honor of becoming its honorary colonel. Unfortunately the Edmonton corps did not long enjoy this honor, for General Laurie passed away in the spring of 1912 after a life of most honorable and distinguished military service.

Feeling that the regiment would gain by having the position of Honorary Colonel filled as well as that of honorary lieutenant colonel, Lieut. Col. Carstairs took such steps that in the fall of 1912 Major Thomas C. Lazier, formerly of the 15th Argyll Light Infantry and commander of No. 1 Company of the Midland Battalion in the '85 rebellion, and Major B. J. Saunders, once of the Montreal Engineer Corps and late major 19th A.D. and later of the Dominion Land Surveyors Intelligence Corps in the rebellion, accepted the positions respectively, much to the gratification of the officers and men of the Regiment. These gentlemen have both been long and honorably known in the militia service of the Dominion, besides which they have both proved themselves good citizens in the home of the Regiment, Edmonton.

CAPTAIN WILLIAM HERBERT KETCHUM-

Ketchum, Captain William Herbert, was born in Colborne. His first service was with the Victoria Rifles, in which he enlisted for service in the Northwest Rebellion of '85. He, however, did not get further than Ottawa, whence he later returned to Montreal. During the Vaccination Riots in that city he was wounded while on duty. Leaving Montreal he served for two years with the Queen's Own before he came west in 1895. One of the first to join the 101st he was an invaluable officer in the position of Adjutant, which he was the first to hold. He would undoubtedly have passed to higher commands in the Regiment had his service not been unfortunately cut short by a paralytic stroke which robbed the 101st of his services, much to the regret of all with whom he had been associated.

BIOGRAPHIES

LIEUTENANT GENERAL JOHN WINBURN LAURIE

Lieutenant General John Winburn Laurie, the first officer to be offered the Honorary Colonelcy of the 101st Regiment, Edmonton Fusiliers, was an officer of the original 101st "Royal" Munster Fusiliers and was among the first members of that celebrated corps to welcome the affiliation of the Edmonton Regiment with his own corps, of which he was honorary colonel for many years previous to his death in the summer of 1912.

General Laurie served for many years in Canada, his first service taking place in the Fenian Raid of 1860. At a later date he was in command of the Imperial troops in Canada and while stationed at Halifax he was instrumental in raising the 63rd Halifax Rifles which he later helped to affiliation with the celebrated "60ths" of the Old Country service, and which is one of the smartest "service" regiments in the armies of the world.

COLONEL THOMAS CAMERON LAZIER

Colonel Thomas Cameron Lazier was born in Belleville, Ont., in August, 1863; descended from old United Empire Loyalist stock, one of the pioneer settlers of the Bay of Quinte, being Colonel Richard Lazier, who was the grandfather of the present colonel.

He was educated at Belleville High School and later at Dr. Tassie's school at Galt, after which he took a military course at Tete du Pont Barracks, Kingston. He later joined the 15th Argyll Light Infantry, in which he became captain in 1882 and adjutant in 1883. At the outbreak of the Reil Rebellion, 1885, he became commander of the right flank company of the famous Midland Regiment under command of the late Lt. Col. A. T. H. Williams, of Port Hope, with which he served at the battle of Batoche where several of his men were badly wounded. Colonel Lazier was afterwards invalided.

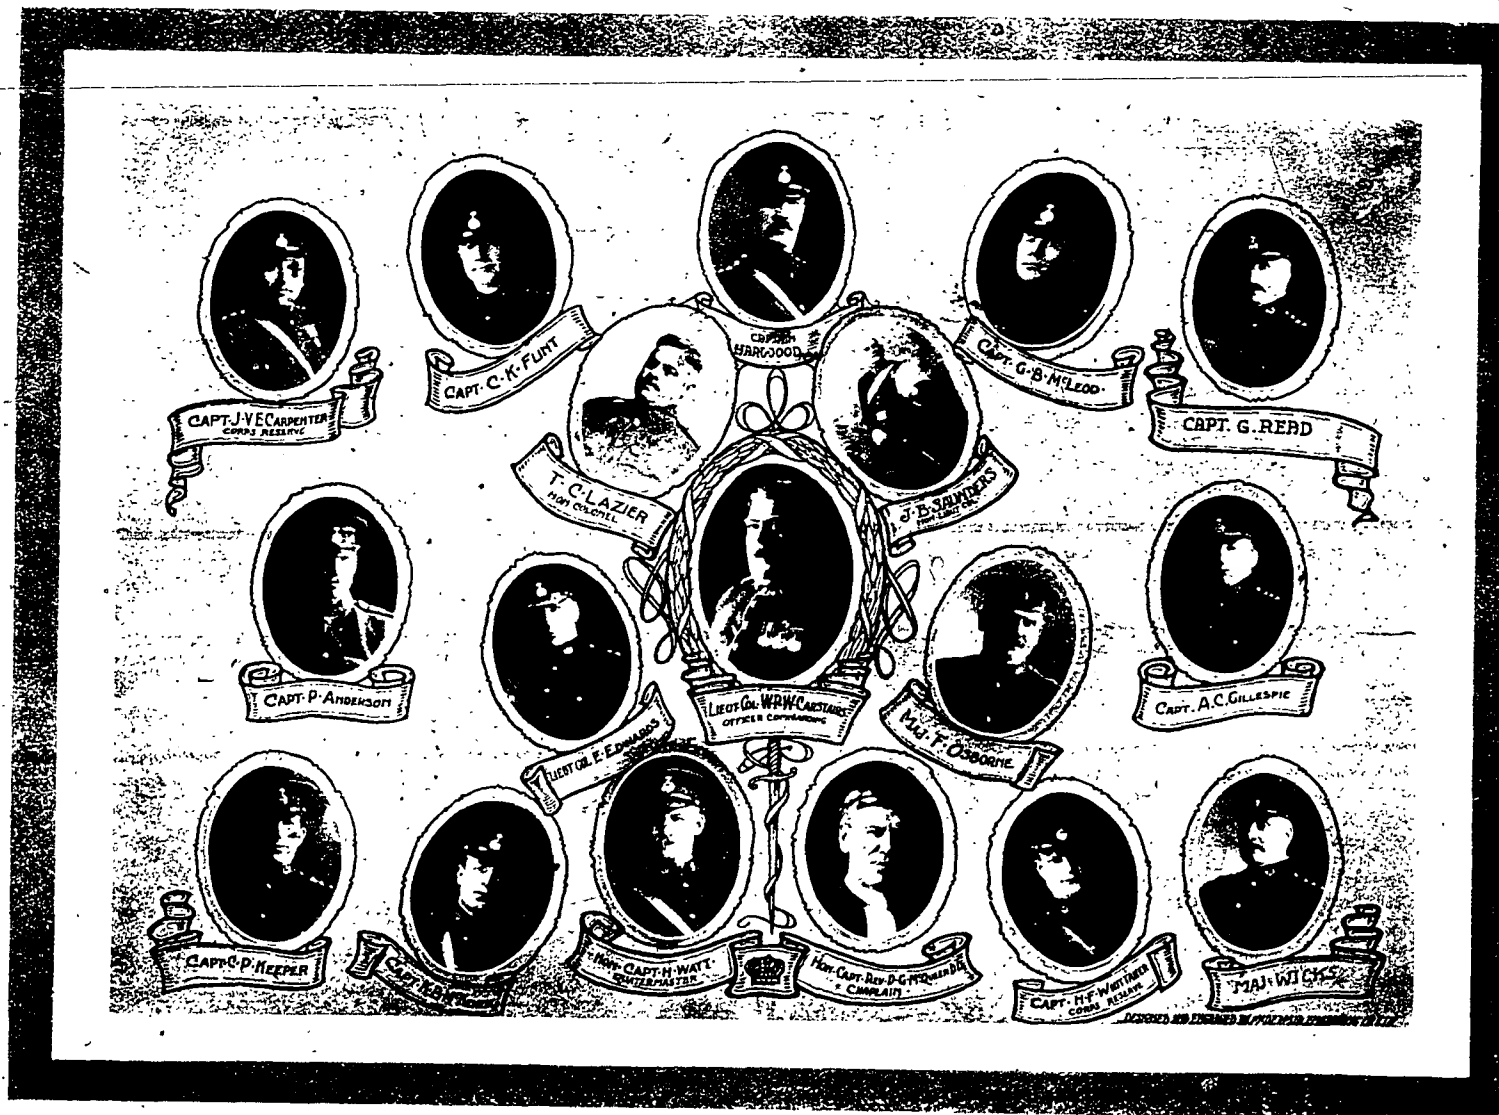

Later, in 1887, he was gazetted Major of the 15th with which rank he retired in 1895.

An enthusiastic cricketer and sportsman he captained the College team when at Dr. Tassie's for three years and was an active participant in many other games. He is also a Scottish Rite and Royal Arch Mason and a member of the Overseas Club and many others.

Colonel Lazier came to Edmonton several years ago and made his home in this western capital, where he hopes to reside permanently. Was gazetted Honorary Colonel of the 101st Regiment in September, 1912, succeeding Lt. Colonel John Winburn Laurie of the 101st Royal Munster Regiment. He wears the Reil rebellion medal with the Batoche clasp.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL BRYCE JOHNSTON SAUNDERS

Lieutenant Colonel Bryce Johnston Saunders was born at Lyndhurst, Ont., in October, 1860, and is descended from parents of Scots origin. He was educated at Athens High School and McGill University, where he graduated as B.A.Sc. in 1886. After serving in different capacities as civil engineer at eastern points he came west in 1885, as Lieutenant in the D. L. S. Intelligence Corps for service with which body he was granted the Rebellion medal. He became Captain in "A" Squadron Canadian Mounted Rifles in 1906, later becoming Major of the 19th Alberta Dragoons (then Alberta Mounted Rifles) with which regiment he was connected until June, 1912, when he was gazetted Lieutenant Colonel and Honorary Lieutenant Colonel of the 101st Regiment. He has unbounded faith in the possibilities of the West, born of an intimate knowledge of its natural and other resources gained in a long experience as an engineer during which time he has held many responsible positions, among others being deputy minister to the N. W. T. government and chief engineer of public works.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL WILLIAM FREDERICK WALLACE CARSTAIRS

Lieutenant Colonel William Frederick Wallace Carstairs, the present officer commanding the 101st Regiment, Edmonton Fusiliers, was born in Kingston, the very centre of Canadian military activity. He is a direct descendant of those staunch U. E. Loyalist families, the Munros, Burgoynes and Stuarts, who settled Eastern Ontario. His great grandfather, Col. Jno. Munro, was one of the six members, who composed the first parliament of Canada. At an early age Col. Carstairs had passed through all ranks from Bugler to Sergeant in the 41st Brockville Rifles and served as Captain in the 56th Lisgar Rifles. On the outbreak of the Riel rebellion in 1885, he resigned his commission and enlisted in the R. N. W. M. P. in which force he served through the campaign and for several years after. During Riel's trial he acted as his guard, sleeping in the cell with him. Later he returned to militia life and was attached for duty to No. 1 Regimental Depot at London, Ont. He left there to accept an appointment as an officer in the Royal Nigerian Constabulary and when the British Government took over the Royal Niger Company's territory he was given a commission and attached to the West African field force and took part in the Bumetin Expeditions of Berniu, Ishau, Unwana, Cross River, Euromia, Arrow etc. His largest command being that of the Unwana column of the Arrow expedition which comprised 1500 of the rank and file and 3000 porters and carriers and was the means of stamping out forever the slave trade in West Central Africa and in destroying the Song Ju-Ju of human sacrifice and cannibal feasting. Returning to Canada, he was appointed Musketry Officer to the 13th Military District which includes Edmonton, and during his tenure of office devoted himself to raising the Regiment he at present commands and which Sir Colin Mackenzie, Inspector General of the Canadian forces, last season stated to be "the smartest regiment in Canada". Colonel Carstairs has the distinction of wearing more decorations for service rendered the Empire than probably any other officer in this province. First the Long Service Decoration, then the medal for the '85 Rebellion and the General African Medal with two clasps for West Coast service. As a member of many military institutions in England and Canada he is as well known and universally popular as any man in western Canada. He is Past Commander in Chief of the Veterans of Alberta, a Fellow of the Royal Colonial Institute and President of the Overseas Club of Edmonton. He is also associated with many friendly and fraternal societies such as the Royal Arch Masons, the Scottish Rite Masons, the Odd-Fellows and Forresters. To conclude he has proved himself in every way a good soldier and citizen and is devoted to the Empire and his Regiment.

MAJOR FRANK A. OSBORNE

Major Frank A. Osborne, who is possibly the oldest old timer in the Regiment, is the senior major and one of those who was associated with Colonel Carstairs in the organization thereof. He is one of the best known men of the Regiment and in the city.

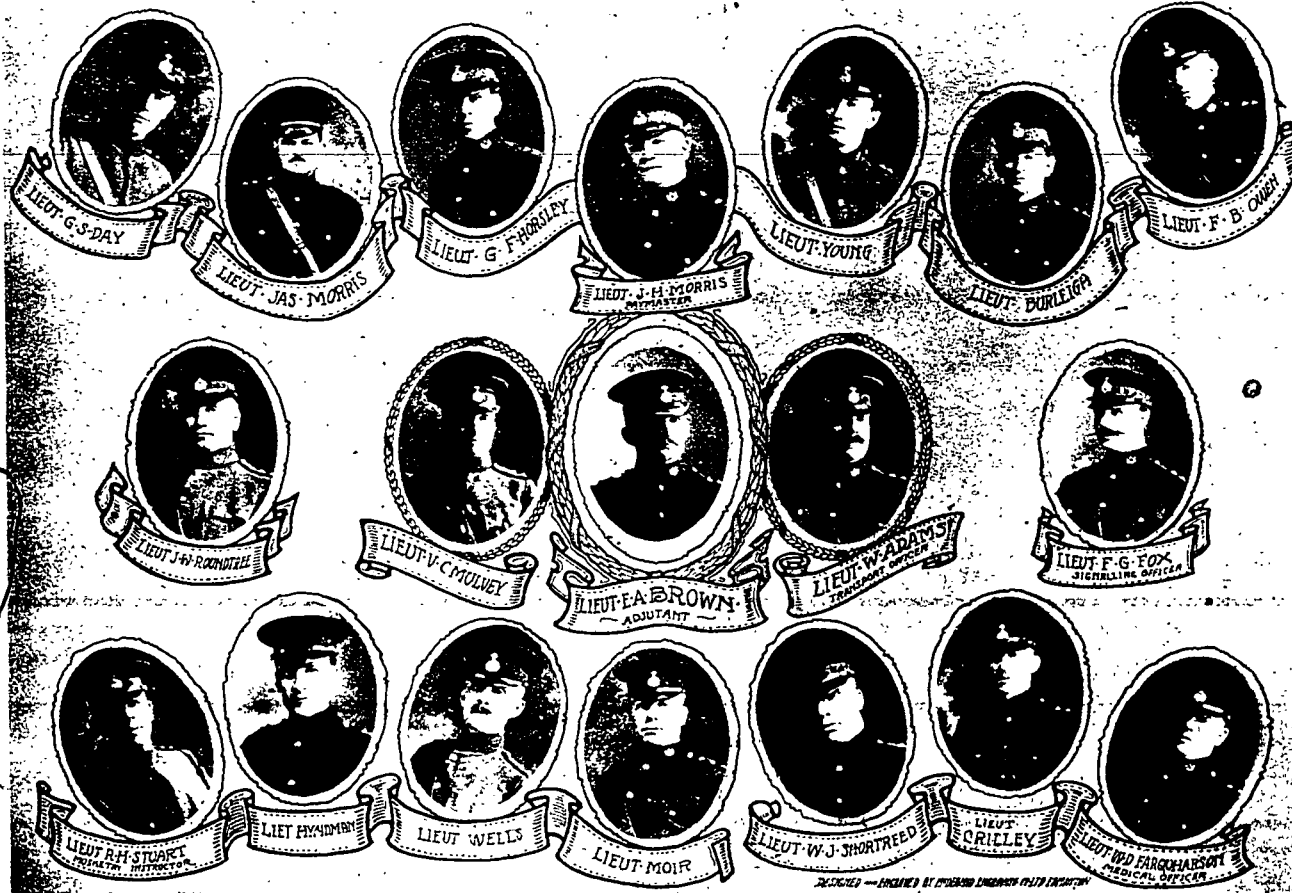

Born at Port Stanley, Ontario, he came west to join his parents thirty years ago, after receiving his education in the East, and was for some time engaged with his father in the Post Office. At the time of the Rebellion he became a member of the Home Guards and was attached to Steele's Scouts as a courier. At the close of the campaign he entered private business but was called back to the public service in 1896 when he was made sub-collector of Customs. In 1898 he was made collector, which post he held until the fall of 1912, when he retired. During his tenure of the position he saw Edmonton grow from nothing more than a little village until the Customs receipts became second to none with any place in the West.

On the organization of the Regiment he was made senior Captain and was very shortly promoted to the rank of Major, becoming the senior Major on the promotion of Colonel Carstairs.

MAJOR WILLIAM SENNETT-WEEKS

Major William Sennett-Weeks is another man who helped to raise the 101st Regiment Edmonton Fusiliers.

Born in England he received an early training for banking, but he turned his mind to commercial enterprises and came to Vancouver, B.C., in 1889. Service in England with the 1st Volunteer Battalion of the King's Own Lancaster Regiment had given him a love of the work especially shooting, of which latter he has many souvenirs of his past successes. In the person of Colonel Tracy, of Vancouver, he met a partner and the two interested themselves in the matter to such an extent that a regiment was raised, which has now become well known as the Duke of Connaught's Rifles. That was in 1890. Not very long afterwards he is to be found in Rossland, forming what is known as the Rocky Mountain Rifles, which corps has produced many well known riflemen. In 1908 he was associated with others in the raising of the 101st in Edmonton, whither he had found his way, and with his spirit of enthusiasm he commanded the largest company until the season of 1912, when he was promoted to Major.

As a company officer he was all that could possibly be desired. He seemed to pass on to all with whom he was associated a desire to make his company the best in the Regiment and by so doing encourage other companies to do likewise. He has always taken a keen personal interest in his men which never fails to keep up their interest.

In business his success has enabled him to place much time at the disposal of his favorite pastime, and it is no mistake to say that wherever his interest may be placed it will be sincere and earn the admiration of all with whom he may be associated.

CAPTAIN WILLIAM HERBERT KETCHUM

Ketchum, Captain William Herbert, was born in Colborne. His first service was with the Victoria Rifles, in which he enlisted for service in the Northwest Rebellion of '85. He, however, did not get farther than Ottawa, whence he later returned to Montreal. During the Vaccination Riots in that city he was wounded while on duty. Leaving Montreal he served for two years with the Queen's Own, Toronto, before he came west in 1895. One of the first to join the 101st he was an invaluable officer in the position of Adjutant, which he was the first to hold. He would undoubtedly have passed to higher commands in the Regiment had his service not been unfortunately cut short by a paralytic stroke which robbed the 101st of his services, much to the regret of all with whom he had been associated.

CAPTAIN HARRY W. WATT

Watt, Captain Harry W. Born at Islington, in June, 1860, and was educated at first in England, finishing up at King's College, N.S.

Coming to Canada in 1880, Captain Watt's connection with the Canadian Militia commenced in 1885, when he became band sergeant of the 78th Regiment. He afterwards became Brigade Band Master at the Aldershot Camp of that year. He remained as band master till 1897, serving in every camp but one in the interval. He then took up his commission and later got his company in the 74th Regiment, with which corps he remained for four years, when he transferred to the Reserve of Officers on his removal to Prince Edward Island, where the D.O.C. placed him on the Brigade Staff out of recognition of his excellent service as Brigade Major for seven years at the Annual Camps. Captain Watts then came to Edmonton, where he was asked to form a band for the 101st Regiment, then in its infancy, which band he raised and remained bandmaster of until the end of the 1912 season, when he became Quartermaster of the Regiment. Captain Harry Watt has always been an asset of value to the Regiment not only for his ability as a musician, but also on account of the hearty way he has of making things go with a swing and of getting around the many little difficulties which arise, still remaining the jovial "Capt. Harry". And while he has laid aside the baton for the time, he still has the business, albeit unofficial, of maintaining harmony whenever little discords try to creep in.

IN MEMORIAM

Our Beloved Comrade

JAMES W. MORRIS

Born at Lugar, Ayrshire, Scotland, 1880. Educated at Lugar Public School. Enlisted in the 42nd "Royal" Highlanders in 1899. Served with this Regiment in the South African Campaign. Afterwards served at Montrose and Edinburgh. Promoted to Sergeant. Returned to Africa afterwards for service with the Garrison Institute. Came to Canada in 1905. Joined the 101st Regiment on formation as Lieutenant. Killed by shooting accident while hunting on March 15th, 1910. Buried with full military honors.
